CD Metrics Briefing (December 3, 2003)

In our presentation we will lay out the current state of thinking and work on a Metrics project definition in the Planning and Customer Support Office of the Computing Division. Using the feedback from the first briefing (Feb 19, 2003), the prototyping work done since then, investigations and discussions with many people, etc., we will present the current status of this work and also some possible directions with effort estimates. Some possible areas of investigation and collaboration will be presented.
